A house full to the duors saw Mrs. Langtry in "The Lady of Lyons" last hight at Albaught's and was sufficiently moved at the close of the fourth act to give her two recalls. As Pauline, Mrs. Langtry is much better than as Lady Onesant, we take has not that soft womanilines, that still intensity which are necessary to make an actress all that the part requires. At times the touch of inspiration comes, rut it does not linger, and until Mrs. Langtry can give it staying qualities the bitast will not be realized. Mr. Coghian's Chande was excellent throughout a quiet force that was not to be resisted. Mr. Everill's Commet Duoms was another good thing, and, by the way. Saw 1011- and on the left, the Hom. C.S. Fairchild, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Governor Long offered the first toast, "The Fraternity," whileh was reaponded to by Hon. James W. Husted. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Fairchild followed, responding to the tenst, "DeLa Kappa Ipsilon in Public Life," The third toast, "The First Washingron Convention," was responded to by Mr. Wilkinson of the Patent Office, who met with most merited applause for an unusually neal speech. Representative Herberts Alabama spoke of "Univ Southern Chapters," and was in turn followed by Bepresentative McCreary of Kentucky on the toast. "The Fraternal Spirit." Hon. M. H. Dunnell of Minnesota then closed with the toast, "The Undergraduates." Then the "boys" samp their college and traternity songs with zest and finish. During the evening a motion was made and unanimously carried, that the handsome pyramid of flowers in the centre of the table by sent Mrs. Cleveland. It was acted on at once, and, before the convention her came in reply. The convention then adjourned, a prettly worded note from her came in reply. Every Saturday For the past twenty years our house has been the rendezvous of the boys and children of Washington. The fathers who to-day bring their boys to our house to be clothed were in like manner brought here for the same purpose by their fathers "in the days of auld lang syne." There is but one road to the people's confidence, and that is the straight and narrow one of TRUTH. How closely we have pursued that road modesty furbids our saying: but we know we have carefully avoided the pitfalls that bound its narrow limits. Therefore, when our advertisements are read, they are relied upor believed implicitly by those who know us; and so it is that when, as to-day, we advertise a sweeping reduction in Boys' and Children's Overcouts, we same to-morrow, and we have accordtion a few of the great bargains now
